FLOOD IN OHIO VALLEY FEARED AS SNOW TURNS TO RAIN HERE

Officials at Dam No. 8 Expect Rise in Stage.

FORECAST RAIN AS SNOW MELTS

All kinds of weather—and how! Ohioans need not be told that all kinds of weather has been inflicted upon them in the past three days. But it isn't amiss to broadcast that they are in for the "and how" part today, tonight and tomorrow.

Official weather forecast reads rain today, tonight and tomorrow with rising temperatures."

Rain will erode most of the snow, weather observers said. With the melting of the snow and rain comes another danger, the flood threat. No rivers or streams were reported near flood stage to-day, however.

tonight, rivermen at Dam No. 8 warned early this afternoon.

Rain in Watersheds.

A light rain was falling in the Allegheny and Monongahela watersheds this morning and further precipitation is expected during the next 24 hours. If the rainfall is heavy the river may reach a flood stage.

The water at Dam No. 8 registered 7.4 feet at 1 o'clock this afternoon and was falling slowly. Lock workers have lowered the wickets in preparation for a high river.

The flood stage here is 33 feet.

The river is reported to be clogged with ice for several miles in the vicinity of Lock No. 4 at Legionville, Pa., and fears for damage—a gorse is formed and the ice moves out at one time were expressed.

The President's Jack Knives. We have Some New Planes. And We Need Them. Chinese, $1,000 Each.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review.

Two friends, invited to the White House luncheon Tuesday, found Mrs. Coolidge and the president very cheerful. No looming sad departure there, but rather cheerfulness as in a school just before vacation begins.

THE newspaper story has it that the president, asked what he planned to do, said he thought he might do "a little whittling." That is not all of the president's plan, of which no one but himself knows anything.

AIR MAIL PILOT BADLY BURNED

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 17.—J. O. Brandon, 32, Dearborn, Mich., air mail pilot who was seriously burned when his plane caught fire while flying from Toledo to Detroit yesterday afternoon, was reported improved at a hospital here today. He landed the burning plane safely. The plane was carrying a ton and a half of air mail.

THE Coolidge jack knives were elaborate, some of them, and fairly plentiful for this reason. The president's father sold his country store and its contents, after elaborate trading. The buyer declared the stock in trade out of date, worthless.

IT WAS agreed that whatever the buyer could not sell within two years Mr. Coolidge would take back.

The time came and the few goods returned and put up in the Coolidge garret, included hats no longer in the fashion, even in rural Vermont, and several jack knives.

BRIDE OUSTED

RUTH BREAKS DOWN AND SOBS AS HE LOOKS ON DEAD WIFE

"Helen, Oh Helen," He Cries at Bier in Boston.

PATHETIC FIGURE

Home Run King is Deeply Touched by Tragedy.

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

BOSTON, Jan. 17.—Tears streamed down the grief-stricken face of "Babe" Ruth as he stood in a driving snow-storm in old Calvary cemetery today and watched the white casket containing the body of his wife, Helen Woodford Ruth, slowly lowered into her grave.

"Lord have mercy on her soul," he prayed, his mouth quivering with emotion.

The stooped shoulders of the world-famous ball player sagged and he seemed to be on the verge of collapse. He was hemmed in by a saddened little group of his wife's relatives, most of whom were sobbing with "babe" without restraint.

Vigil in House of Sorrow.

BOSTON, Jan. 17.—Babe Ruth, idol of millions of baseball fans, broke down and sobbed like a child as he knelt at the flower-strewn bier of his wife, Helen, today.

"Helen, Oh Helen," he murmured, brokenly, th. fingers of his clenched hands locked tightly before him as tears streamed down his cheeks.

The man whose mighty deeds on the diamond have thrilled a nation and whose name is a household word the world over was a pathetic figure as he knifed there for exactly six minutes, inconsolable in his grief. It was the first time since her tragic death in a fire-swept bungalow that he had looked upon the face of the woman who had once been his comrade and teammate, and who had shared his early trials and later triumphs.

Glare of Spotlight on Babe.

She lay there, white and peaceful, her jet black hair resting on a snow-white silken pillow. At each end of her casket were two tall candles whose flickering lights, pointing heavenward, cast their reflections upon the grief-stricken face of the kneeling man.

The idol that is Babe Ruth became plain, ordinary George Ruth—meat, a broken, crushed figure touched deeply by the greatest tragedy of his life.

Even in this hour of his supreme sorrow, the glare of the spotlight that seems always to have been Ruth's, caught him as he stepped from a closed limousine to enter the modest, fram dwelling which is the home of his wife's mother.

New Owners Born Here.

Julius and Lester Erlanger were born and reared in East Liverpool. Their father was a nephew of William Erlanger, sr., who died in his home in Canton, Dec. 26, 1916. Julius Erlanger left home in 1916 after finishing a course in business economics in the University of Pittsburgh. For six years he had charge of the Bon Ton store at Lebanon, Pa. This store later merged with the Hahn organization.

Kneels at Casket.

Slowly Ruth made his way into the house. Reporters had been barred.

This writer, however, managed to enter. (Continued on page eight, Col. on)

Two Children Escape As Fire Razes Home

Gould Home in Salineville Destroyed; Youngsters, Aged Five and Two Years, Respectively, Left Alone, Flew Blaze.

WELLSVILLE, O., Jan. 17.—Endangering the lives of two children, aged five and two years, respectively, fire destroyed the four-room brick home at 68 West Main street, Salineville, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Gould, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock with a loss estimated at $2,500.

Virtually all of the family's household goods and furniture were destroyed by the blaze.

The fire is believed to have started in a bedroom.

Mrs. Gould left the house, going to a meat shop a short distance away, the two children remaining at home. In the meantime, the fire broke out. Bobby Gould, aged five, and his two-year-old sister fled from the burning dwelling to a neighbor's home. An alarm was turned in. Neighbors endeavored to save what household goods they could but were forced back by the rapidly spreading flames.

The house was owned by W. F. Kirk of Salineville.

Moundsville Man in Auto Crash Here,
Gets Hearing.

George Gillas, of Moundsville, W. Va., arrested here shortly after Christmas on a charge of reckless driving after his automobile struck the one-way bridge over Little Yellow creek, was fined $25 and costs by Acting Mayor Clyde Baker at a hearing last night in police court.

Gillas and his attorney, the latter from Steubenville, filed notice of their intention to appeal the finding to common pleas court.

According to police, Gillas attempted to pass a truck, driven by Fred Zacharias of Wellsville, at the bridge. Gillas' car collided with the bridge.

The Moundsville man then went to Zacharias, police say, and asked that he pay the damages to his car, the latter refusing and, at the same time, notifying police, who arrested Gillas.

Evangelist, Continuing Six-week Campaign in Elyria, Upholds Biblical Theory Regarding Whale.

ELYRIA, O., Jan. 17.—Continuing his six weeks' evangelistic campaign here last night, Rev. William A. (Billy) Sunday, in a sermon on "Jonah," shouted his belief in the biblical theory that a man can live inside a whale.

"The question isn't did the whale swallow Jonah," he said. "The question is, could God make a whale big enough to swallow a man? If He could, He did."

There are 56 different kinds of whales big enough to swallow a man, Sunday declared, and he called instances in modern times when men as vice chairman of the executive committee of the Alleghen Regional Advisory board, an organization of shippers and railroad company officials, it was announced today.

Thirty-two pottery manufacturers in eastern Ohio, western Pennsylvania and the Panhandle sections of West Virginia and Maryland are members of the advisory board.

"Instead of submitting to God," Sunday continued, telling Jonah's story, "Jonah got as sore as a Methodist preacher whose bishop had sent him to a church where the pigs slept under the steps and the roof was like a sieve."

In a sermon on "Mary and Martha" yesterday afternoon, Sunday expressed his preference for Martha.

"She is my favorite," he said. "I imagine she was a sort of northwester woman, kind of snappyish and always on the job. Mary was one of those dreamy kind."

Donley has represented the cer-

Growing Children

sometimes require a tonic as do their elders*

GIVE your child the right chance to develop, and you will not regret it in later years.

Many children become undernourished due to lack of appetite. Keep the appetite keen. Food nourishes the body and makes it grow.

Also watch Nature's warning for changes in the system. Skin troubles—pimples, boils and that salivous complexion—all foretell a body weakness.

In such cases, S.S.S. is the proper tonic. It improves the appetite; helps Nature build rich, red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

In building rich, red blood cells, S.S.S. improves the processes by which the body is nourished.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping children and their elders regain strength and vitality.

* The physical welfare of the child is being given more attention by school authorities. Failure to keep up with class work and absence from school is probably due to a nervousness and rundown condition that may be largely attributed to a deficiency in red blood cells.

Children like S.S.S. It is made from fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

Beetham Sounds Tocsin

State Prohibition Director Rupert R. Beetham, Cadiz banker, declares that city and county officials will either enforce the dry laws in their territories, or the state prohibition department will. And the added threat by Mr. Beetham that unless dry laws are enforced locally he will make it his business to replace inefficient officials, puts teeth into the first pronouncement the new Ohio dry chief has made.

It is customary when a man heads a bureau as important as the Ohio prohibition enforcement department, for the new chief to state his position so the public may have some idea what he proposes doing. But it has been the result many times in the past that the man at the head of such a department failed to live up to the promises he made.

But in the case of Mr. Beetham one feels what he says he intends doing, that he will do. It has been the history of Mr. Beetham's public utterances in the past that he followed them out to their logical conclusion, and when he promised he would do something, he did it.

So it is to be expected that the state dry laws will be rigidly enforced under Mr. Beetham. He says he will name aides in each section of the state, and these aides will have the united support of his department and all the law-enforcement machinery of the state. He will notify the enforcement officers—sheriffs, police chiefs and such—in the several political subdivisions that he intends riding herd on them unless they dry up the wet spots in their particular jurisdictions. And, if they fail, Mr. Beetham says he will make the wet spots arid, and do everything in his power to oust those officials whom he suspects of pulling back in the cellar.

So far Mr. Beetham has announced appointment of only one zone agent—John D. Hayes of St. Clairsville, in Belmont county. It will be Hayes' territory in eastern Ohio, and that includes Columbiana county. What may be expected of Mr. Hayes, if he is imbued with the necessity of law enforcement like his chief, is the drying up of the entire eastern part of the state. Mr. Hayes will be able to do this, if he goes after the job in proper form, and with Beetham lending his moral support and the support of the state enforcement machinery, one may see results within a short time.

There are a lot of real wet spots in this part of the state. This cannot be questioned. It is probable they are difficult to dry up, but that remains to be seen. If local law enforcement officers have fallen down on the job, they had better watch out for their official heads, for Beetham has the reputation of dealing ruthlessly with those who oppose him, and inasmuch as he is a prohibitionist and believes in prohibition, it is not stretching the point to predict that action will be forthcoming almost immediately.

Craze For Small Feet

There need be no surprise occasioned by the declarations of Dr. A. E. Kennard, a foremost bone specialist of London, that women the world over are rapidly approaching a condition of permanent crippleness through the current craze for small feet.

It has been learned by Dr. Kennard that some women actually are having their toes amputated in their mad desire to present a shapely and pretty foot which under the conditions nature imposed wouldn't fit into a two and a half, last B. So away go some of the toes, and the women, perchance, must hobble around as though they were walking with stones in their shoes.

It is amazing what some women will do for the sake of styles. And after all, what is style? Does style demand crippling one's self? Surely not. Style means dressing in the mode, and neatness, and ability to be at home in any crowd, and congeniality. It doesn't mean slicing off a toe or two so one's foot can be jammed into a shoe two sizes too small.

This craze for chic footwear is not a passing fad, either. It has been noticeable for a generation. Women are constantly demanding smaller shoes, when they know in their own hearts their feet cannot be crowded into them. And now it develops they are amputating sectors of the feet in order to appear in this chic footwear.

Cooper Cabinet

Judging by past performances of the men themselves, it is safe to say that Governor Cooper's cabinet is made up of just about the strongest material obtainable—a cabinet which ought to give Ohio one of the very best executive administrations the state has had in many years.

Personnel of the cabinet follows: Harry D. Silver of Eaton, director of finance; Perry L. Green, Hiram, director of agriculture; Edward D. Schorr, Cincinnati, director of commerce; Robert N. Waid, Columbus, director of highways; Will T. Blake, East Liverpool, director of industrial relations; H. H. Griswold, Cleveland, director of public welfare; Dr. Charles A. Neal, Cincinnati, director of health; Arthur W. Reynolds, Columbus, adjutant general; Rupert R. Beetham, Cadiz, director of prohibition; John L. Clifton, Columbus, director of education, and Robert W. Wida, Columbus, director of public works.

While the last two men named are Democrats and holdovers from the Donahue administration by virtue of constitutional mandate, there is no reason to believe they will not go along with the new chief.

As concerns the remainder of the governor's official family, it is composed of efficient timber, men who are fitted for the tasks at hand, capable of great things and executives who should bring their departments within a very short time to the highest possible efficiency. Governor Cooper is starting off on the right foot by surrounding himself with competent cabinet members, and Ohioans have every reason to believe as the new administration begins functioning that real progress will be made in the next two years.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 17.—When the railroads of the United States first began to spread their network over the land the most astonishing confusion existed. Competition was unbridled and all sorts of abuses occurred. Although the framers of the constitution had the foresight to give power to the congress to regulate commerce among the states, no very real occasion had arisen to practice that conferred authority. Cut-throat competition resulted with rebates to shippers favoring certain lines and a shower of passes to any one who might conceivably have any influence in bringing favor or business to railroads.

In a somewhat less aggravated state, the motor bus has been passing through a similar confused period but there are signs that it will not take long to straighten out vexed and controversial matters.

There is a sharp and fundamental division of authority in this country. The federal government has the right to control interstate commerce and, through practice with the interstate commerce commission, has acquired much valuable experience. But the states retain rights to regulate purely intra-state commerce or commerce wholly within their own borders. However, the experience of the interstate commerce commission with the railroads has shown how these two regulatory functions may overlap and there are quite a few rules to go by which will prove applicable to motor bus traffic.

In the short period during which motor bus traffic has become an important transportation factor—scarcely a decade—all but three of the states have adopted regulatory statutes of one kind or another. Delaware, Georgia, and Florida have failed to do so. In Florida the motor bus traffic is tremendous but Florida has a state policy which might be compared to that of the Boy Scouts. That policy appears to be to do at least one good turn a day to visitors. So by refraining from regulation of buses, very largely patronized by tourists, bus conveniences have been multiplied just as by enacting no state income tax, permanent residents have been invited.

The other states require bus companies to take out a certificate of public convenience and necessity, a permit or a license or some form of permission from the state public utilities commission before operating as common carriers. However, the states have not yet generally advanced to the point where they strictly regulate rates and security issues by bus companies as does the interstate commerce commission in respect to rail road carriers in interstate commerce.

Periodically the old question—the question which caused the Civil war—crops up; the question of states' rights.

The first notable test case was against the Free State of Maryland. Maryland has a law requiring all operators of motor vehicles on state roads—and no others are passable—to take out the usual license. A courtesy tag, good for fourteen days, is issued to visitors from every jurisdiction but the District of Columbia, Maryland's close neighbor. When a motorist, thinking the state law repugnant to the constitution, took a test case to the supreme court, the highest tribunal upheld the state, holding that it had a right to legislate in any way it saw fit as to motor traffic within its borders. The case was brought by a private motorist but the principle extended to buses as well. The theory on which the court acted was that there was a complete absence of federal legislation on the subject. Similar cases were similarly upheld by the high court.

Then litigation took a different turn. A law of Michigan required common carriers—constructed to include buses and trucks—to take out indemnity liability insurance. A case arose in which a firm of truckers, engaged upon a contract to haul goods over the state line, ran afoul of the law. The case went to the supreme court and, in that case, that tribunal held that such a statute was an unwarrantable burden on interstate commerce and that a state could not compel a company to comply with a state provision regarding insurance when the carrier was engaged in interstate commerce.

Perhaps a more sweeping case, setting aside states' rights to arbitrary regulation, a. v. in respect to a motor bus line. A company proposed to inaugurate a bus line between Portland, Oregon, and Seattle, Washington. Oregon required a certificate of public convenience and necessity and a license. These were obtained in due order by the applicant. Washington state had similar requirements but the applicant, upon applying, had a difficult reception.

He was refused on the ground that there already was an adequate transportation service by rail and four other bus lines between the cities of Portland, Oregon and Seattle, Washington. The applicant brought suit and carried the case to the supreme court of the United States which found in his favor.

How this complicated matter will come out can scarcely be forecast at this date. A bill is pending in congress which would seek to set up some regulatory measures designed to meet the various mingled questions which have arisen. It is almost certain that any such statute will have to go through an ordeal in the courts.

An instance well calculated to show how difficult such a regulatory question is may be studied in connection with the bus line operating across the new bridge from Philadelphia in the state of Pennsylvania to Camden in the state of New Jersey—two cities in two states but divided by a rather narrow stream. A motor bus line operates across the bridge. But these buses, because of the state laws on the one hand and the interstate laws on the other can not carry intra-state passengers. Thus, these buses can not pick up a passenger in Philadelphia and put him down in any other part of the city. Nor can they pick up a passenger from some point in New Jersey and put him down in Camden. If he wants to go to Camden he must go through the motions of interstate commerce, be driven across the bridge and walk back, swim the river, or use any other means he chooses. Camden merchants have raised a storm because suburban shopkeepers who used to come in from the outskirts and shop in Camden on the Jersey side, find they must ride across to Philadelphia, and, once there, they naturally make their purchases at the nearest convenient and suitable store.

Another hard nut for congress to crack!

BETWEEN YOU AND ME

During the Great War a Frenchman, an Englishman and an Irishman found three Germans asleep, and the Frenchman said, "Let's shoot them"; the Englishman said, "Let's take them prisoners"; but the Irishman said, "Sure let's wake them up an' have a scrap."

ARE YOU ACQUAINTED with the fact that Milliron's Filling Station on Second and Washington streets is equipped with every type of SERVICE to the Motorist of today? It is better known as "Grease Palace", which at once gives you the impression that they know their "oils and gasoline" but that isn't all—they will wash and clean your car so carefully that you will say, "Fine, look's almost like new."

A BIT OF GOOD NEWS. I'd like to pass along is this. Every pair of Ladies' Stetson and Cantilever shoes—in every fashionable leather and style is included in the clearance sale at Bendheim's Shoe Store. Regularly priced much higher, you may select the pair of your choice for only $8.50. All shoes of recognized quality.

STRAW AND FELT artistically combined—form some of the many new Spring hats—I saw yesterday in Moyer's Upstairs Store. Their Millinery Dept. is replete with all the new shades in hats for the Miss and Matron . . . hats that can be worn now and late into Spring. Would you believe I saw some very chic little hats reduced to $2.50? At this price one can surely have a hat to match every frock. A new hat has a way of brightening one's disposition as well as appearance sometimes.

YOU NEEDN'T BE AN "ARTIST", to have a temperamental complexion. Today it may be just the right tint and texture—tomorrow, rough, chapped and sensitive. Of course, one can't do a thing about the weather, but you can "save your face" by using Theatrical Cold Cream for cleansing rather than so much soap and water. At Carnahan's Drug Stores you can purchase a whole pound of this fine cream for only 75 cents. At this price you can use it quite generously.

Whether it be a runner or a snag it can be re-knit by this new "Stelos System." I tried ever so hard, but failed to detect the "mended" places on those I had repaired.

Rev. I. M. Ellis Speaks on "Looking Into Future."

SALVATION CALL

No Human Excuse for Refusing God, Evangelist Says.

That there is no human excuse for refusing or neglecting the salvation offered by God was asserted in a vigorous discourse by the Rev. I. M. Ellis, Texas evangelist, at the First Nazarene church, St. Clair avenue, last night. His subject was: "Looking Into the Future."

Eight conversions followed the sermon, they sending the total for meetings to 226.

In the afternoon the Rev. Mr. Ellis made another talk on the book of Revelations.

Tonight's Sermon Topic.

He will speak again tonight, his theme being "King Saul's Father."

Announcement was made by the Rev. O. L. Benedict, the pastor, that the Rev. Mr. Ellis will preach on Sunday afternoon on "The Millennium," a theme which, following his discussion of Revelations, has aroused much interest among local Bible students.

Headed by their pastor, the Rev. W. F. Miller, a large delegation of members of the Nazarene church of Toronto, attended last night's service.

The invocation was performed by the Rev. B. H. Pocock, of Akron.

Man, 82, Gets Prison Term on Rum Charge

William H. Baker, Batavia, Convicted Five Times, And Another Offender, 50, are Sentenced.

BATAVIA, O., Jan. 17.—An 82-year-old man was to be taken to the Ohio state penitentiary at Columbus today to begin serving a sentence of from one to five years for violation of the national prohibition laws.

Another man, who is 50, and who was convicted with the elder man, is also to be taken to the big state prison to begin serving a similar term. The men are William H. Baker, 82, and Charles Mercer.

They were convicted of the violation March 9, last, but were free on bond pending appeal to the higher courts. This appeal was denied.

Each was also fined $500 and costs.

The 82-year-old man has been convicted five times on similar charges.

principles," but did not reveal his own plans except to say that he would be heard on the radio from time to time.

Some observers, however, saw in the latter statement an indication that the former governor intended to remain in the political limelight.

Asserting that a militant party or organization must be organized and that it must "stay on the job constantly in stead of functioning only six months in four years," Smith advanced a plan to provide money for this purpose as well as to wipe out the $1,500,000 deficit in the Democratic party campaign fund. He asked for contributions from the rank and file and announced that for every contribution of $2 or more the Democratic national committee will send the donor a book containing copies of his campaign speeches. The book is illustrated with campaign photographs.

To allow a small group of wealthy men to meet the deficit would place too much power in the hands of a few, the speaker warned.

A reserve price of $7,500,000 has been placed by the Soviet government on the six paintings, including a Rubens, a Rembrandt, a Raphael and a Leonardo da Vinci, which are to be sold abroad.

No More Piles

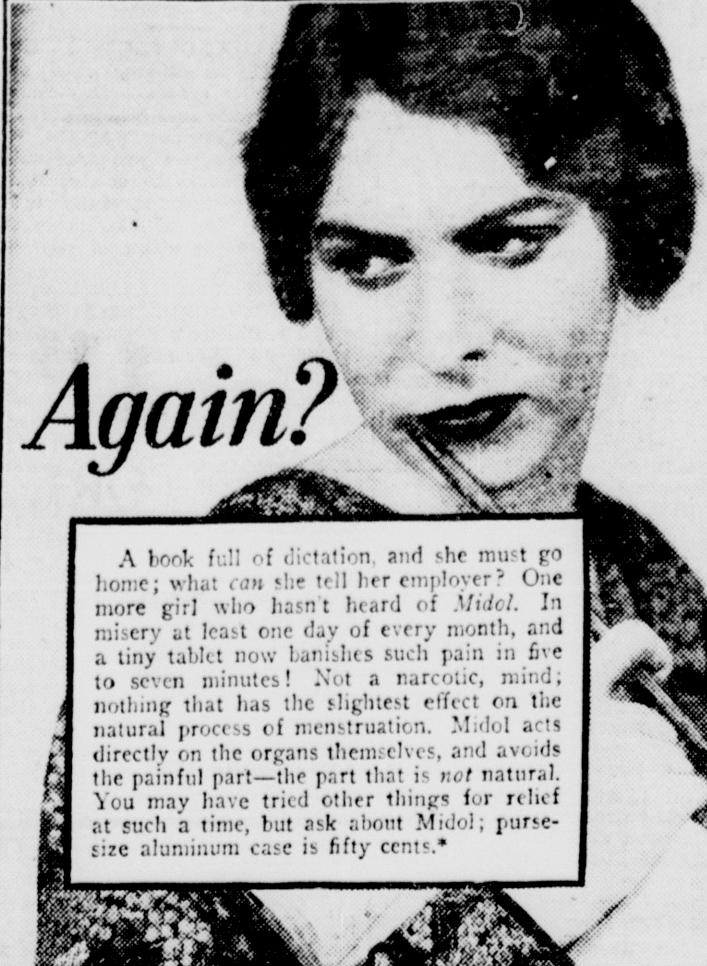

Thousands Bless Dr. Leonhardt, the Specialist Who Discovered This Common Sense Remedy.

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you haven't heard of the new treatment known as Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID.

This Doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting for years he discovered the exact cause of piles and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause.

Dr. Leonhardt wants every sufferer to benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubt or delay, Mathews' Original Cut Rate and all druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.

On that honorable basis every sufferer should secure a package of Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID today.—Adv.

Again?

A book full of dictation, and she must go home; what can she tell her employer? One more girl who hasn't heard of Midol. In misery at least one day of every month, and a tiny tablet now banishes such pain in five to seven minutes! Not a narcotic, mind; nothing that has the slightest effect on the natural process of menstruation. Midol acts directly on the organs themselves, and avoids the painful part—the part that is not natural. You may have tried other things for relief at such a time, but ask about Midol; purse-size aluminum case is fifty cents.*

* Midol's comfort is not confined to any certain days or age. It relieves at any time of life. Its ease is felt immediately in cases of nervous headache, backache, cramping, hot flashes and all febrile pain peculiar to women.

No wonder everybody around here is talking about Rinsol. It's the best soap ever for our hard water! I'll never forget the first time I tried it. Talk about surprises. The wash was white as white can be—yet all I did was soak and rinse!

"I'll never go back to old-fashioned soaps again—because I can see how the scrubless Rinsol way saves the clothes. And how good it is to my hands, too!"

"I use Rinsol for dishes, and for all household cleaning. I like the suds—they're so thick and creamy. And it saves me the cost of a water softener."

TIRE RECEIVER LISTS ASSETS

O. O. Allison Spends Day on Stand at Wheeling.

Examination of O. O. Allison, one of the receivers for the Chester Cord Tire company, took up the entire day yesterday at the hearing before Russell G. Nesbitt, special master in the equity action brought by the Midland Rubber company in the federal court building at Wheeling.

The case is the outgrowth of an objection of stockholder creditors to reports of the receivers, it being claimed the inventory figures filed with a bankruptcy petition varied from those of the inventory taken at the time of receivership appointments.

The schedule filed in the bankruptcy case showed liabilities of $581,771.86 and assets of $331,144.76. The inventory schedule made up at the time of the receivership has not been divulged as yet.

In his testimony Wednesday, Allison stated that discounts to creditor companies varied as much as from 15 to 40 percent, and explained that shipments were made at these rates so that the company could continue to operate.

Allison and V. W. Petersen, the other receiver, were appointed by Judge William E. Baker in U. S. district court at the request of stockholders. On the stand, Wednesday, Allison stated that he was not acquainted with the rubber manufacturing business and depended on officials of the concern for advice. The company operated but six months after their appointment.

Attorneys appearing in the case include Henry M. Hazelbarber, of Akron, O.; Samuel T. Spears, of Elkins, W. Va.; J. H. Davis, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; James B. Levy, of Weirton, W. Va., and William F. Simpson, Kent B. Hall and Charles F. Paull, of Wheeling.

HOOVER WILL LEAVE MONDAY FOR FLORIDA

President-elect Has Notebooks Crammed With Data.

ONE-MONTH REST

Defers Announcement of Cabinet Until March.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—President-elect Herbert Hoover will leave Washington next Monday at 10:30 a.m. for Miami Beach, it was announced today at his headquarters here. He will travel in a special train over the Atlantic Coast Line, and arrive at Miami Beach about 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

He will leave Washington with his notebooks crammed with data and suggestions that bear on everything from cabinet material to his inaugural speech and future legislation.

The president-elect has cleared up an enormous amount of work in the nearly two weeks he has been here. He has settled the question of the extra session of congress. There is to be one, starting in April. He has decided upon a thoroughgoing fact-finding investigation of prohibition by a committee of experts of his own choosing. He has outlined what he wants done concerning the inaugural ceremony. He has seen and conferred with upward of 300 people, including nearly every Republican member of the senate, and the chairmen of all important committees of the house. And there is reason to believe he has arrived at some fairly definite conclusions about some of the men he wants in his cabinet.

Protests Pour In.

It is not likely, however, that there will be any announcement concerning cabinet choices until shortly before March 4.

A fair example of what might be expected if advance announcements were made occurred in the case of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, the one member of the Coolidge cabinet that Washington considers is sure to go into the Hoover cabinet.

Within 24 hours after the publication of stories that Mellon would be retained protests began to roll into the Hoover offices in the Mayflower from those who are opposed to Mellon policies. The protests came by mail, telegraph, and Senator Nye (R.) of North Dakota, and Senator Couzens (R.) of Michigan, protested in person.

Donovan is Opposed.

Published stories that William J. Donovan of New York, is a likely selection for attorney general brought a similar flood of protests. Friends of Senator Wheeler (D.) of Montana, attacked immediately Donovan on the ground he "prosecuted the persecution" of the Montana senator in retaliation for what Wheeler did to Harry M. Daugherty. The fanatical drys protested that Donovan isn't dry enough to be attorney general. The Ku Klux Klan protested that a protest must head the department of justice. Donovan is a Catholic.

Babe Ruth Sobs

ter with Ruth and knelt with him at the casket.

It was but a step or two inside and turning to the left, the famous ball player was in the flower-strewed room. There at Ruth's feet, as he knelt and blessed himself were his own flowers—a great mass of roses, Calla lilies and sweetpeas, upon which were written in white flowers the words: "Rest in Peace."

Ruth bowed his head. His hands came together and his fingers closed tightly in a mighty grasp. His huge body shook convulsively. He looked upon the pale sweet face, so still in death, and sobbed racking his frame. Tears coursed down his cheeks.

The room was very still.

Ruth's emotions got completely beyond his control and he sobbed loudly—unashamed.

Flashlights Boom.

Ruth seemed to have been kneeling there for an age when his bosom friend, Arthur Crowley, tapped him gently on the shoulder.

"Come, Babe," he whispered.

Ruth did not seem to hear him.

Presently Attorney Feeney came to the kneeling man and said, more firmly, "Come, Babe."

And Ruth arose, wiping his tear-streaked eyes.

Ruth turned and blindly followed his friends to the door and out into the street.

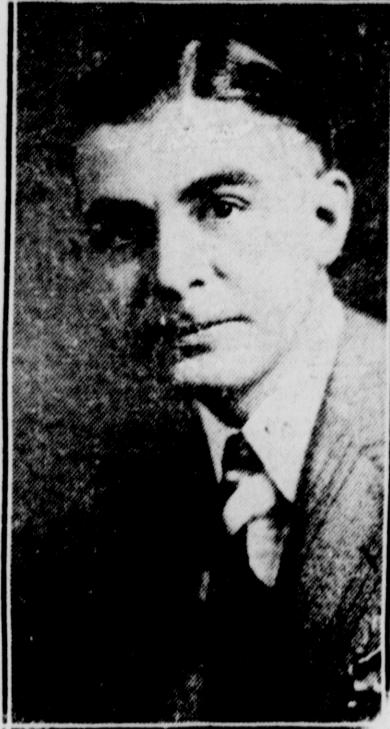

A Whole Meal in One Swallow!

 E ALL know the value of vegetables, and the reader may know just which vegetables are best for the inner system. But it's another thing to eat them in sufficient quantities! Why not get the benefit of their goodness in the pleasant form of syrup pepsi?

There is as much good in a spoon of syrup pepsi as one would get from a basketful of vegetables. Those who have learned this secret of health don't have to pamper their stomachs, or whip-up their bowels with a lot of strong medicines. They seldom, if ever, have liver trouble and can usually eat anything.

So, don't give up rich foods. Don't go on a dull vegetable "diet." Just take a spoonful of syrup pepsi now and then.

Fifteen Other World Powers Also Renounce Bloodshed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—In a ceremony unusual in American history, President Coolidge today affixed his signature to the Kellogg-Briand anti-war treaty.

With members of the cabinet, the senate and other high government officials grouped about him in the east room of the white house, President Coolidge attached his name to the document with a bold stroke of his pen at 10:10 a.m. Thus was completed the negotiations intimated by Secretary of State Kellogg in Paris last summer when 15 of the world's powers signed the treaty to renounce war as a matter of national policy.

Besides the 15 original signatures, 41 other nations have agreed to adhere to the pact of Paris.

Powers of the New Konjola.

MR. ALBERT J. ANDERSON.

The remarkable health-restoring powers of Konjola, the new medicine, are demonstrated daily by its triumphs over those stubborn cases that have baffled all efforts for relief.

A striking example of the super-merits of Konjola is found in the statement of Mr. Albert J. Anderson, 93 Spencer street, Ashtabula, Ohio, formerly a professional weight-lifter of amazing strength. In 1911 his health failed. He said:

"In 1911 I was stricken with indigestion, neuritis and affection of the sciatic nerve. I tried everything, and nothing helped me. I was about to give up hope when Konjola was recommended by a fellow-employee, who urged me not to delay a day in starting on Konjola. From the very start of the treatment I had results, and as the days passed the indigestion disappeared, the neuritis pains grew fainter, the sciatic nerve was normal again, and today I am in perfect health. No one can realize what this recovery meant to a man who was so strong some years ago that he thought he never could take ill. Konjola is little short of wonderful, for it took just three bottles of this amazing medicine to end disease that held me in its clutches for seventeen years."

Konjola is sold in East Liverpool, O., at Carnahan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. Adv.

East Liverpool Bows To Knicker's In Auditorium Clash, 46-44

West Penn Loop Champs Cop in Closing Quarter

Trailing by 15 Points at Half, Visitors Assail Baskets in Final Periods; Firth Smith Leads Potters' Attack.

East Liverpool's "five good men and true," performing of necessity as individuals rather than as an aggregate, last night lost by a 46-44 score to one good team, the Casim Knicker's of Pittsburgh, in a sensational encounter that lifted the lid on the independent cage season at the public auditorium.

Lacking the advantage of team practice, playing their first game together and, consequently, unable to perfect a co-ordinated offense on so short a notice, the Potters nevertheless came within three points of knocking off the club that has held a monopoly on the West Penn league championship for the last two seasons.

Only a hairraising finish by the Knicker's in the final quarter, in which the visitors scored 21 points, prevented the East Liverpool club from hanging up a victory in their auditorium premier.

As it was there are no regrets whatsoever.

The performance of the locals as individuals left little to be asked. Their passing was not what it might be, especially under the basket, but that, in a very short time, can be remedied.

The fact that the Potters had a 27 to 12 lead in the first half and was unable to hold it down the closing canto means nothing at all except that their shooting in the first and second periods was nothing short of being uncanny.

Smith Gets 21 Points.

Firth Smith, former Western Reserve star, who compiled the neat total of 21 points for the evening, found the basket early. He rang up three field goals in the opening quarters with Center Brookes getting the other one of the four made by the locals in this section of the contest.

Forward Hunter of the Knicker's sneaked one in and added a pair of fouls while the giant Harrop, Knicker center, made another.

Those two field goals and the pair of fouls represented the Knicker point making in the quarter. And that counter by Hunter had a horseshoe on it. It was just a one-handed heave that sizzled through cleanly.

The visitors opened up with their long range guns in the second quarter with no more success than they enjoyed in the opener. Clark, who replaced Harrop at center, snagged a two-pointer. Babie, the guard who later was to play so important a role in the Knicker's last period rally and subsequent victory, got the range with a field and Murawski, guard who relieved Babie toward the end of the first half, sank one.

In the meantime, the Potters were stepping merrily along. Paul English, forward, troubled the nets with three nice field goals; Smith got two more and Center Brookes donated a couple. The score at the half was East Liverpool 27, Knicker's 12.

Looked Good at Half.

And anyone who at that moment would have laid a nickel on the Knicker's chances of winning would bet on the Phillies to win the pennant.

The difference between the Knicker's and the Phils, though, is that the Knicker's did win.

They did it with their little field goals—did "Speedo" Montgomery and Bill Babie, the guard.

Montgomery and Babie were the focal points of a passing attack that the Knicker's must have discovered under the floor of their dressing rooms between halves. How they got that way is a mystery but the fact remains that they had something in the second half that they didn't have in the first.

Montgomery and Babie got "hot," and the rest of the visiting firemen began to feed them the ball. First "Speedo" and then Babie; cutting down one side and then the other, with two hands, one hand or either hand, they had that leather playing all kinds of tricks.

And when the excitement had subsided Montgomery had collected six field goals, Babie seven and Murawski, who replaced Schrode at guard, had it along with two more.

The battling was even in the third in which the visitors collected 13 points, as their offensive got well under way to the Potters' 12. That made the count 33 to 25 with the locals still on the heavy end.

The almost impossible happened in the windup section when the Smoky City lads shook in 21 points. Holding the home quinto to five, they succeeded in overcoming an imposing lead. It was a monstrous task the Knicker's assumed, trailing as they were at the half, but luck favored them.

Chrysler's New Style is Based on Authentic Canons of Classic Beauty

Chrysler engineering has achieved something never done before in motor car design.

It has searched out authentic forms of beauty which have come down the centuries unsurpassed and unchallenged and has translated them in terms of motor car beauty and motor car utility.

The lengths to which Chrysler designers have gone in this patient pursuit of beauty will doubtless prove a revelation to those who have probably accepted Chrysler symmetry and charm as fortunate but more or less accidental conceptions.

The Chrysler process goes far deeper than any charming but fortuitous design.

For, Chrysler has left nothing to chance.

Chrysler has not relied alone upon the inspiration of individual designers.

Chrysler in its newest products—has found that there are so many glorious precedents and inspirations in art, architecture and design, that the search for authentic and harmonious symmetry can actually be reduced to something like a scientific system in which results are certain.

East Liverpool Reserves at Chester high.

Salem at Wellsville.

Saturday.

Marietta at East Liverpool, public auditorium.

Newell at Irondale.

Wellsville at Salineville. (Chester no game).

That's the scholastic basketball lineup for the present week-end. Coach Joe Hurst's teams go to Steubenville for a double tray, girls and boys, with their old Jefferson county rivals and take on Marietta on the auditorium court the following night.

Newell high school squads perform on the auditorium floor tomorrow night in a home game against Rogers.

Lacking a home court of their own at Newell, the West Virginians will use the local floor for such engagements in the future.

Wellsville and Salem are paired off for a battle tomorrow night at Wellsville. The girls' game there may outrank the main encounter in point of interest.

Chester tomorrow night plays a return game with the local high reserves, the latter winning here in a recent tilt. In a preliminary, the Chester seventh and eighth graders will tangle.

TWO GAMES ON 'Y' CAGE CARD

Two games are scheduled in the Y. M. C. A. basketball league tonight. The first engagement will bring together the Peerless and Packard five.

The Cadillac stacks up against the Stutz in the second. The opening game is scheduled for 8:15 and all players are urged to report promptly on time. Several new men will make their appearance in the lineups this evening.

Yanks, A's Are Doped To Battle

Another Two Club Race Possible in Junior Loop.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the second and last of a series of articles by Davis J. Walsh, dealing with the profit and loss shown by the ball clubs of each major league, either by trades or natural division, since the close of the 1928 season.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—They tell about the patient who suffered a bad rally and the ball club which lost fifteen games straight and then went into a slump and, if neither of these cases has too much in common with the American league of today, it is because of the fact that, if some of its strong points are weakening, some of its weak points are strengthening. Individually, there is evidence of tangible improvement in only a few cases and then largely in the nominal sense. But, as an organization, the league is coming on. It is a better league today than it has been these three years because it is beginning to take on what the aristocracy would term an aspect of balance.

Granting that improvements have been achieved, here and there, it will have to be conceded that much of this has been effected in the second division and, if this isn't encouraging, then you are beyond all aid and may your sons grow up to be college cheer leaders.

The New York Yankees, for example, will be no better for the simple reason that they will be much too busy being somewhat worse.

Red Sox Improve.

The Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Browns have added nothing of note between seasons and, if they improve at all, it will be because some of their young men will be that much better for another year on this earth. All I can say for the Washington Senators is that, if they bettered themselves, they have done so in strict privacy. The Senators, as a matter of fact, may find that they are off about ten percent, the Yankees probably the same. The really improved outfits are the weak clubs of Cleveland and Boston and another second division entry, the Detroit Tigers. This should mean the beginning of the end of these cake-walk processions in the American league.

However, there probably will be little change in the ultimate standing next October. Everything points to another two-club race between the Yankees and Athletics, with the latter having a great chance. The Yanks need at least one more pitcher who can win ball games and, with infield uncertainties and possibly some decline on the part of the Hon. Babe Ruth, they may find that they have run their race. As it was, they were raced right up to the wire to win by two or three games last year.

Browns Haven't Improved Much.

The Browns made a great play for support in coming from seventh to third place in one season. But they haven't improved a whole lot and they have a long way to come. They were nineteen games behind the lead at the pay-off in 1928 and, while the Athletics were equally in arrears the preceding year and still came back in 1928 to cut their liability by some sixteen games, they had only one club to catch, the Browns have two and will do well to make it at all close.

Walter Johnson is counting on a lot of young pitchers coming through. Men like Judge and Rice are getting no younger and there is a spot at second base which might become an impolite or yawning chasm at a moment's notice. The Senators couldn't touch .500 in finishing fourth last year and, frankly, they don't look the part for 1929.

The White Sox also have a cavity playing second base for them and there is no apparent change imminent, unless some youth suddenly decides to have his fling. Cissell, too, may come on at shortstop but nobody can guarantee results there. The Sox have too many questions to answer in their infield for their own good, in spite of an outfield punch, fair catching and good pitching. They don't figure to get out of the second division.

Tigers are Good, Cautious Bet.

The Tigers, on the contrary, are a good, cautious bet in this respect. Harris is a great man with a new ball club and, although his tentative line up lacks the outfield punch that has come to be associated with Detroit clubs of the last 25 years, he will get something out of the pitchers and probably will lift the morale of the entire outfit. He is just the man to handle Ulte and the latter may have one of his big years. If he does, the Tigers will go places.

Tavener will help Cleveland at shortstop and I guess this Averill from the coast is a real outfielder. But the club needs a first baseman and pitchers and probably will go nowhere in particular until it gets a few of each. It will be harder to beat, however.

So, fortunately, will the Red Sox. They made an excellent deal for Myer with Washington, a deal that will tighten the infield and maybe give the punch an extra kick or two. But of course, the Sox have too far to come. They were almost forty-five games back of the Yankees at the 1928

Former Salem Man to Coach State Elevens

Sam Willaman Succeeds Wilce as Buckeye Mentor.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 16.—A native Ohioan, former resident of Salem, and a graduate of State—Sam W. Willaman—was selected, yesterday afternoon to succeed Dr. John W. Wilce as football coach of the Scarlet and Grey elevens.

The appointment was made by the athletic board of the university.

The new director of gridiron activities at State declared in a statement to the press that his assistants would include George Houser, line coach, and Don Miller, to assist with back field warriors, provided their services could be secured.

Houser was line coach at Colgate university during the past season and is a former Minnesota tackle.

Miller, who gained fame as one of the noted "Four Horsemen" at Notre Dame, is another native Ohioan, having been born in Defiance, where he attended grade and high schools.

Miller is now county prosecutor of Cuyahoga county, but during the football season serves as backfield coach at Georgia Tech. That position has been his since 1925, when he was graduated from Notre Dame.

Granting that improvements have been achieved, here and there, it will have to be conceded that much of this has been effected in the second division and, if this isn't encouraging, then you are beyond all aid and may your sons grow up to be college cheer leaders.

The Newell lads put up a classy game but were pitted against too many experienced hands.

The Clothiers led the entire route, although the school boys put on a scoring rally in the last half which kept things warm for a while. Smith, forward, led the Newell scorers, with 10 points.

Thrilling story of love of two girls for the same man

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

But though Flora made her more than welcome, and the three round-eyed, chubby children greeted her with shrieks of joy, Daphne always went home with a lump in her throat, and a sense of depression that lasted for days. Just the way the tall, stoop-shouldered Axel touched Flora, the quick understanding glances that flashed between them, made her ache with loneliness. They had each other . . . the shabby flat, the noisy children, the heaped mending basket . . . what did they matter? They had love . . . love bright and brave enough to gild and glorify even the dreary job of everyday living . . .

"I'm one of the unlucky ones," she decided. "I'll go on working forever and ever. I've got a good position now. I can have nice clothes like Miss Yardley, and go to plays and symphonies with other girls. After a while I'll save enough to have my own apartment, and get a cat, and a parrot, like all the rest of the old maids!"

"Allan—come back to me!" she cried across the miles.

"I'm coming—wait for me!" she could almost hear him answer. But that was nonsense, of course. He'd have forgotten her by this time, men were good at forgetting. She tried to force his image out of her mind . . . blue eyed, shock-headed Allan with the old, tired look back of his eyes, and the little-boy freckles over his nose . . .

She battled with all her strength against thinking about him. "Look all the time you put in moaning about that Ralph McKeavit! And what good did that ever do you. Suppose Allan Winters did like you once? Couldn't he get over it?" Not for worlds would she have asked old Mr. Greely for news, though she knew intuitively that he was in touch with Allan.

"I hear Mr. Winters is going to be in charge at McKeavit's pretty soon," Barney, the office boy, volunteered. "Gee, it'll be tough on McKeavit to have to take orders from him, won't it? But gee, he's getting off easy at that. Everybody on the street is talking . . . he sure did Mr. Winters an awful turn. If I was him I wouldn't have the face to stick it out. Maybe he'll beat it when Mr. Winters gets back—I heard he most likely will—What did you hear, Miss Haines?"

"I didn't hear anything," Daphne said truthfully, though Barney didn't believe her. Fat chance of the Boss' secretary not knowing anything about it!

The long summer days dragged. Mr. Greely and his early-Victorian sister went for their annual fortnight at the vine-covered cottage in Bolinas. The stylish Miss Yardley, her plain face flushed with excitement, left for Lake Louise with a girl friend and a wardrobe trunk full of carefully selected clothes. And when they were all back again, and even the office boy had had his two weeks, Daphne was still there.

"When are you going on your vacation, Miss Haines?"

Daphne didn't know. She was waiting . . . for something . . . she wouldn't admit, even to herself, for what . . . "I'll go soon," she told them evasively. Every morning, in Mrs. Hinckle's back bedroom, she awakened, her large gray eyes bright with hope . . . "Maybe this will be the day . . . maybe he will come back today." Every night she covered her typewriter and cleared her desk, with a vague sense of disappointment. Another day gone . . . wasn't he ever coming?

He came one warm afternoon in August, when no one, not even Daphne was expecting him, and Mr. Greely was out.

"But I think Mr. Greely will be in later," Mrs. Hobbs, in her capacity of receptionist, volunteered. "If you'd care to go into his office and wait—"

She was a little boggled over by this new Mr. Winters. This bronzed and strangely different Allan Winters, of whom all California street was talking . . . this poised, nonchalantly at ease stranger who had replaced the awkward boy of two years ago, and the supposed fugitive from justice of eleven short months ago . . . this returned hero who was going to make that uppity McKeavit look sick . . .

"Thanks," he said, "I'll wait."

And so it was that Allan Winters and Daphne Haines met once more in old Mr. McKeavit's dark-paneled office, with the bright hunting prints on the walls, and big, uncurtained windows looking out across the flat silver bay where the little ships, tinier than toys, rode silently in and out of the harbor. . .

They stared at each other shyly. The long dreamed of moment had come, not at all as they had dreamed it . . . she, sorting papers at the big desk, her nose probably shiny, and he expecting to find the office empty . . . not ready for her . . . yet . . .

"I'm so sorry Mr. Greely is out. He'll be awfully disappointed to think he wasn't here. I know he's been looking forward . . . we've been terribly busy . . . that Howard case is simply making us work day and night! Isn't it hot?" "maybe if I open one of these windows . . . won't you have a chair?" she babbled crazily. All the blood in her body was pounding in her head. After the first startled stare she kept her eyes averted . . . she was afraid . . . afraid that he would see . . .

"I came in on the Peru," he was saying. "An awful old tub. But a whole lot better than the one I went down on. I shipped on freighter, you know. Signed on as supercargo. But Greely told you of course—"

She shook her head. "No, he didn't." Oh why didn't Mr. Greely come back? Why couldn't she stop this crazy shaking? You could see he didn't care a thing about her—talking about ships—just making conversation . . .

"Came into port less than an hour ago. They held us in quarantine for a century. Always fuss with the South American ships you know. You can see the quarantine station pretty near, can't you?"

They both looked steadily out to sea. Searching intently for Allan's ship, neatly tied at its accustomed pier. "We came in about over there—it was quite foggy this morning"—

She followed his pointing finger, not seeing a thing. He chattered on, hardly conscious of what he was saying. He wondered how much she knew. He thought of that night last September when he wrote his heart out on a few sheets of white paper, and then impelled by some nameless, savage need, paced the waterfront, watching the shadowy hulking ships in the first gray light, not knowing, not caring why he had come . . . He thought again of his chance meeting with a seafaring friend . . . "Any chance for a landlubber to get on one of these boats? . . . Anywhere . . . do anything . . . Sure, now—why not?"

He felt again that first sharp shock of realization when a few hours later he stood on the spray flecked bridge, and saw the pilot turning back to port, and he bound for South America ports, with his affairs, his future, his very reputation in the hands of an untrust-worthy friend, and the girl he loved . . . the girl he loved . . . He looked down at her now. Daphne, with her cloudy black hair, wide dark eyes, flecked with amber as the waters in some deep, quiet pool in the woods are sometimes flecked with sun.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions.

Five trustees were elected for three years. They are: F. P. Mullins, A. M. Wilhelm, Mrs. Myra B. Woodruff, Mrs. F. J. Emeny and Mrs. Burt Leeper. The first three were re-elected, while Mrs. Emeny and Mrs. Leeper succeeded Mrs. W. H. Dunn, resigned, and Mrs. Paul E. Barchkoff, who died recently.

The trustees named the following officers: President, Judge J. C. Boone; vice president, F. P. Mullins; secretary, Miss Alice MacMillan; treasurer, F. R. Pow.

The Senior is available in eight body types, and is being shown with the New Dodge Six models.

"We anticipate the heaviest production schedule in Dodge history," said Matheson. "Facilities at the factory have been geared for peak volume output of quality cars. New high standards have been established in attaining maximum performance and dependability that have characterized the more than 2,000,000 motor cars that bear Dodge Brothers name.

With the total 1928 production of Dodge Brothers' cars 12.8 per cent above the 1927 mark, according to figures announced today, Dodge Brothers Corporation is entering 1929 with prospects of the largest year in its history. Monthly shipments of cars and trucks have exceeded the corresponding months of 1927 in nearly every case and under the guiding genius of Walter P. Chrysler, the company expects to establish new production records, according to Charles W. Matheson, general sales manager.
